

European Award

Architectural Heritage Intervention

Rules of the 6th edition

The European Award AHI is a biennial event. The main goal of this event is to distinguish quality interventions in all the aspects of built heritage and contribute to their dissemination.

The event is jointly organised with the Architects' Association of Catalonia (COAC).

The European Award AHI is aimed at all those professionals, associations and administrations linked to architectural heritage, such as:

architects
architectural firms
town planners
historians
archaeologists

whose works have been conducted in the European geographical Area.

The following groups of people may not enter the contest: Any member of the COAC board, any jury member, or the members of the management team of the Award; as well as employees, collaborators or their associates or those related to them (until second degree of consanguinity and second of affinity).

The call is divided into four categories:

- Built heritage

Aimed at all those architectural interventions, ephemeral or permanent, in buildings, at any scale. Interventions are mainly considered in protected buildings and groups of buildings, but may also involve all those interventions of culturally specific interest which have no protection, but are embedded in an urban or naturally protected space and help to define its historic character.

- Exterior spaces

Aimed at all those interventions intended to propose solutions to the historic public space, understood as a space facilitating the social and economic relations that exist in historic centres. Those spaces that are declared monumental groups of buildings are also included, as are those that constitute the origin of villages, towns and cities. Interventions in the area of monuments and cultural landscapes are also accepted.

- Urban planning

Aimed at all those Special Plans for heritage protection, catalogues, inventories, or other planning instruments, involving the protection, conservation and enhancement of architectural heritage. General planning documents, those documents derived from planning, etc., are also included, as well as those at local level that are aimed at the protection of architectural heritage.

- Disclosure

Aimed at all those initiatives and actions which are mainly concerned with the dissemination of architectural heritage values, not only among professionals and technicians in the industry, but in society in general. Publications, articles, audiovisual accounts, presentations, events and all kinds of activities related to the promotion and appreciation of this heritage are also accepted.

Requirements

All submissions must be entered into one of the award categories and they must have been conducted or published in the period between January 1st, 2016 and December 31st, 2022 in the European geographical area. The only exception is Disclosure category, where works by European authors in other geographical areas will be accepted.

The same author may present more than one work, piece or publication. A single intervention can apply for the award in different categories. But the specific documentation required for each of the categories must be presented.

All the requested documentation detailed in the rules of the call is processed through the web. In this way, the submitted projects become automatically part of the AHI Archive.

Registration and delivery of documentation

The deadline for submission of documentation will be on March 17th, 2023 at 24:00 h. (GMT+1).

Each registration fee is 100 Euros (VAT included) for general entries and 90 Euro (VAT included) for AADIPA (Association of Architects for the Defence and Intervention in Architectural Heritage) members. The same author may present more than one work, piece or publication. A single intervention can apply for the award in different categories. But the registration fee must be paid for each category.
